OCIO—Outsourced Chief Investment Office
Evaluating the opportunities

Outsourced portfolio management continues to be one of the strongest trends to emerge among endowments, foundations and families. Outsourced assets in the United States are expected to grow by $700 billion over the next five years.¹ Today, 52% of groups polled have “substantially” outsourced portfolio management.²

A TREND RECENTLY GATHERING MOMENTUM

This worldwide shift toward outsourcing is a by-product of the ever-increasing complexity of global markets. It also signals a growing awareness among organizations that more successful portfolio management requires more sophisticated tools and resources, as well as more timely decision making.

The outsourced CIO framework can be an effective way to integrate the sophisticated investment management capabilities of a leading financial institution into the day-to-day functioning of an endowment, a foundation or a family office, specifically:

JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. and its affiliates (collectively “JPMCB”) offer investment products, which may include bank-managed accounts and custody, as part of its trust and fiduciary services. Other investment products and services, such as brokerage and advisory accounts, are offered through J.P. Morgan Securities LLC (“JPMS”), a member of FINRA and SIPC. JPMCB and JPMS are affiliated companies under the common control of JPMorgan Chase & Co.

INVESTMENT PRODUCTS: • NOT FDIC INSURED • NO BANK GUARANTEE • MAY LOSE VALUE

NOT FOR RETAIL USE OR DISTRIBUTION
- Institutional-quality resources: Access to leading investment managers and sophisticated analytics, with additional layers of governance and oversight.
- Managing through dislocated markets: When acting in a fiduciary capacity, an outsourced CIO can take timely actions—without waiting for the next quarterly meeting of the investment committee.
- Tailored investment options: Services provided can be matched to the specific needs—and then altered as market conditions or institutional objectives change.

Further, outsourced portfolio management can free in-house staff to focus on other financial functions and allow investment committee members to concentrate on investment oversight and related functions, such as investment policy, capital budget matters, and longer-term institutional goals and missions.

CONSIDERATIONS BEFORE OUTSOURCING

An important first step is to understand the organizational resources and skill set of the investment committee. Challenging economic environments and financial markets can require significant resources to refine portfolios. During these periods, investment committee members may need to consider:

- The strengths and weaknesses of the investment committee.
- Evaluating the resources needed to strategically manage the institution’s legacy assets.
- Whether the right team dynamics are in place for achieving committee success.

Furthermore, consider the necessary skill set, timing and other limitations imposed by how most investment committees are organized:

- Do the current members of the investment committee have the investment expertise necessary to:
  - Develop multi-asset-class investment policies?
  - Meaningfully critique overall risk-adjusted investment performance?
  - Evaluate active managers, and especially alternative strategies?

- Can the investment committee, within the context of quarterly meetings, adequately:
  - Create and actively monitor policy decisions?
  - Identify potential risk management issues?
  - Assess changing market conditions?

- Consider legacy fixed assets, such as real estate?
- Select and/or evaluate investment managers?
- Address regulatory and compliance issues?
- Manage administrative issues?
- Provide a comprehensive liquidity analysis?
- Identify potential risk management issues?
- Conduct, and analyze the results of, rigorous stress testing?

Working in an outsourced CIO format may give the investment committee the time to pursue policy and strategy, distribution and other significant issues to a greater degree than is possible when its members are tasked with all aspects of the investment program. The model is flexible and can range from investment committees organized to primarily consider those policy issues that can have a significant impact on long-term results, to those charged with the dual functions of investment policy and execution.

TOP REASONS ENDOWMENTS AND FOUNDATIONS OUTSOURCE PORTFOLIO MANAGEMENT RESPONSIBILITIES

For those who turn to professional asset managers rather than keep total responsibility for investments in-house, a lack of resources, better risk management and fiduciary oversight were top reasons to outsource.

- Governance and best practices guidance
  - Advice on wide-ranging strategic matters: asset allocation decisions, governance matters, and investment committee/board policy setting
  - Board education regarding fiduciary regulatory and investing matters
  - Investment policy statement resources (white paper and template) and best practices

- Portfolio construction
  - Modeling of strategic asset allocation and portfolio risk

Day-to-day investment activities:
- Ongoing manager due diligence
- Strategic and tactical asset allocation
- Liquidity management
- Tactical positioning within defined guidelines
- Performance reporting

Analytics

- Portfolio analytics and risk analysis

Communication

- Participate in all regularly scheduled, in-person meetings
- Provide timely analysis, intellectual capital and access to our best thinking and best practices

PORTFOLIO ADVISORY: IDEAS AND EXECUTION

J.P. Morgan also works with clients on a more limited/nondiscretionary basis with:

- Single-sleeve management
- Recommendations regarding manager implementation across asset classes, including:
  - Proprietary mutual funds, ETFs, separately managed portfolios, alternative investments across entire platform
- Portfolio and risk analysis
- Comprehensive reporting, including monthly statements, performance analysis and access to real-time data
- Attendance at all regularly scheduled, in-person meetings

HOW MUCH IS OUTSOURCED

Among organizations that move to professional management, most grant discretion over their entire portfolios.
